Give The Stomach A Chance To Work

We can't expect the stomach to act normally if the natural avenues of elim-ination are blocked so it cannot dis-pose of its refuse. When the bowels are constipated the stomach is called upon for work beyond its capacity and the result is block, belching, headache, and discomfort generally, and, unless the condition is promptly relieved, serious illness.

condition is promptly relieved, serious illness.

An effective remedy for constipation is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Fepsin. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that acts on the bowels in a gentle, natural manner, without griping or other pain or discomfort, affording speedy relief. Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Fepsin from your druggist and have it in the house when you need it; it costs only fifty cents and is the ideal family remedy, mild enough for children and old people, yet sufficiently powerful for the strongest constitution. "We regret to announce that John Redmond died at 7:45 o'clock morning. Owing to several serious attacks of illness, a severe operation was faced with great courage. It had become imperatively necessary, owing to an intestinal obstruction. This was relieved by the operation, and for some days satisfactory progress was maintained. When David Lloyd George, the British premier, in that year offered two methods of settling the vexed Irish question, it was Redmond who, as spokesman for the nationalists, rejected the proposition for a partition of Ireland and, instead, accepted Lloyd George's alternative plan for the convocation of the Irish convention in which Irishmen of nearly all parties and creeds might meet in the "ffort to compose their differences and draft a constitution that would afford jus-

"It has continued chiefly to test the strength between the enemy submarine and the measures we and our allies have taken for combatting that menace. There have been occasional interludes, such as the exit of the exertions, Goeben and the Breslau, and the recent raid by enemy destroyers on a Dover patrol. Occasional raids on our convoys and the English coast are a natural outcome of the blockaded enemy trying to harass the blockading fleet. The exit of the Goeben and the Breslau (from the Dardanelles) was a raid of a similar character. The Goeben was refloated, and while the reports justify the belief that she was damaged we must for the present treat her as a still efficient engine of war. The loss of the Breslau is a serious one to the enemy in that area and much outweighs, from a military viewpoint, the loss of our Raglan and M-28 (British monitors sunk during the engagement with the Goeben and the Breslau outside the Dardanells).

Incident Satisfactory.

"The Dover raid is in a way a satisfactory incident. It has been commonly believed that the passage of submarines through the Straits of Dover have been prevented by nets and obstructions since the early days of the war. That is not true and undoubtedly a considerable number of submarines passed through, even towards the end of last year. He stated, however, that thirty per cent of the losses of merchant ships was accounted for in the Mediterranean and that conditions there were more difficult to

"It became increasingly evident," continued Sir Eric, "that as our re-sources improved we would be able to turn our attention more to the Mediter ranean. I recently went to Rome for a meeting of the allied naval committee and also inspected the naval establishments in the Mediterranean, including those of the Greek navy. Brit-ish naval officers are assisting the Greeks in the reorganization of their navy, which is already co-operating in the Mediterranean and rendering valuable service.

"The meeting of the committee in Rome was representative of all the allies with naval forces in European waters. It accepted fully the antisubmarine proposals put forward by Vice-Admiral Calthorpe, British com-mander-in-chief in the Mediterranean. It agreed we should forthwith adopt and adapt to the Mediterranean the same measures which have given cess in the waters of the British Isles and the main antisubmarine operations decided on will be undertaken under vice admiral Calthorpe's orders."

Sir Eric described briefly his tour of the Mediterranean, then touched on the smooth working of the naval reorgan-ization in Great Britain and the work of the allied naval council at Ver-sailies. Touching upon the relations with the allies and remarking that the naval forces in European waters would shortly be augmented by a force of Brazilian war vessels, the first lord
